Seed Grain and Potatoes.

Directed Free from the Dominion Experimental Farms.

By instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central farm at Ottawa applying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications for any kind of plated fruit cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cereal, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed, delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province. J. H. Grisdale, Director Dominion Experimental Farms.

To whom it may concern—

NOTICE is hereby given pursuant to the order of His Honour Judge Jackson, the Court of Common Pleas, for the trial of the Education Return for the Rural Municipality of Forty Mile, No. 64, in the County of Lethbridge, for the year 1913, that the amount of taxes due for the said Municipality to the 31st day of December, 1913, is $1,000.00, payable at the Bow Island Hotel, in the Town of Bow Island, on the 6th day of November, 1914, at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, in the Bow Hall, in the Town of Bow Island, on the 6th day of November, A.D. 1914.

JUDGE'S ORDER.

IN the matter of an application for Confirmation of Tax Enforcement Return, for the Rural Municipality of Forty Mile, No. 64, in the Province of Alberta.

NOTICE is hereby given pursuant to the order of His Honour Judge Jackson, the Court of Common Pleas, for the trial of the Education Return for the Rural Municipality of Forty Mile, No. 64, in the County of Lethbridge, for the year 1913, that the amount of taxes due for the said Municipality to the 31st day of December, 1913, is $1,000.00, payable at the Bow Island Hotel, in the Town of Bow Island, on the 6th day of November, 1914, at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, in the Bow Hall, in the Town of Bow Island, on the 6th day of November, A.D. 1914.

M. GIBRONS,

UNITY OF THE EMPIRE

VIEW ON THE WAR

The Commercial Part of the British Empire Are Not Germanic Races, But Partners in the Business—Everyone Ready to Help the Empire

As might have been expected from a man with a real knowledge of this country, Dr. Dernburg states the case for Germany and the American Intelligence. He admits at the outset that Great Britain was not responsible for the war, but he belittles the importance of the violation of the Hague Convention by the belligerent nations. Mr. Gladstone in 1870, he places the burden upon the Germans.

But he cannot rid his mind of the fact that Germany is destined to expand her empire, and world supremacy. No nation, and least of all Germany, has any such desire. Germany's neighbors have immense military power, and the German people, by demonstrating its strength, are helping to bring about world solidarity. The obsession of world domination is the dream of empires since history began.

Another German writer of less consideration, Dr. Eichmann, in his "Confession of German citizens in England" (by my patrols of the London police), says that the English were won over to a pistol, just as the statesmen in Berlin were won over to a rifle, based upon mutual advantage without coercion. The London policemen, like the German soldiers, are supporting the incomplete assumptions upon which the German expectations of a distinct victory were founded.

The India war is rise in rebellion. But every independent Indian ruler has voted with the three hundred others in voting for the independence of themselves. The Boer does not want to "take" South Africa. In the best and most favorable conditions, he proposes to take it; the German colony in West South Africa, while he sees a chance to do so, will not take it.

The same is true of the English-speaking self-governing colonies, such as Canada, and Newfoundland, and the others. The Sultan's "Holy War" in the light of Modern Moslem writers in Egypt is a lie.

And the Irish are to rise again. In the last two centuries there is not a "red coat" in Ireland.

The non-combatants of the British empire are not conquered races, but partners in the business. They must be taxed, and taxed, and taxed, and receive authority and responsibility to exactly the degree in which they are taxed. The Boer represents a degree of freedom such as the world never saw before. But the Boer is not a dreamer. The Government carried on without an attorney, a bureaucracy, or a conspiracy.

The Pan-Slav danger is a fear, and little else. The Swedes must necessarily be considered as friends in this connection. This is true in Russia, where the serfs are considered. It is true of the Balkan states. It may be true of the Boer, but it is not true of the Boer.

Considering the hardness to which it would appeal to the sympathies of the world, it is a world-system of self-government, and it is a world system with the principle well enough established in the United States to make commercial competition not hostis but, exchange, and that it can be done.

What is wanted is a world-system of self-government, and it is a world system with the principle well enough established in the United States to make commercial competition not hostis but, exchange, and that it can be done.

The Torpedo

One of the most terrible engines of war is the torpedo, as was demonstrated by the destruction of three British cruisers, but it is not the people who imagine it to be. The first torpedo was invented by Robert Fulton in 1807. Eight years later Robert Fulton designed a missile of the kind, which he purchased by the French admiralty.

After Fulton came many inventors, and the torpedo was soon engaged in war.

The first step of all is that of the British admiralty, which is thirty-one and a half inches, Germany and France follow with twenty-eight, thirty-one inches, and France, Italy and Austria each step out twenty-four inches, and the United States found in the Russian army.

The second step is to make a hundred and twelve to the minute.

This is beaten by the Pomeranian, which is beaten and foremost to the point.

The Austrians step out at twenty-four inches, and the French and Italy at a hundred and a hundred and twenty.

Therefore follows that a Russel will take twenty minutes to a mile, the Austrian sixteen and a two-thirds, the French and the German eighteen minutes, and the German ten or eleven seconds less.

The First Scotch Newsman

One who was a man who commanded the benefit of a newspaper in Scotland, in 1851, Christopher Gadsden, having convened with his army to Leith, reprinted there what had been already printed in the Edinburgh Review. Some Passages and Affairs for the Information of the English Soldiers appeared at Edinburgh, according to Clinton, in the year of Our Lord 1851, under the title of Marmurius Caledonius, comprising the history of the Scotch War, and a survey of foreign intelligence. It was published once a week in a small volume.

The same author tells us that it was a son of Bishop of Orkney who had the wit to amuse, the knowledge to inform, and the address to interest the public in the news of Scotland. But he was only able, with all his powers to extort a few lines from the men who were very poor, very illiterate and very affected.

Crawford—So you found a package of old love letters? I wrote you them when I was in college. I learned to drink right in those days.

Just Like Him, the Brute

—No, sir; only jest angle-worms, I replied, and you wanted to go to college. I learned to drink right in those days.

"I must say you have a good deal of perseverance," explained the gentle man.

"No, them's suckers. Guess ye ain't lived in these parts, ha y?"

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Short Paragraphs Gleamed From Many Sources, Depicting the Lighter Side of Life

Some Inventors

The battle is slow that day in the only shop in the village. The boy who sold everything to a white elephant, now a single copper had been passed away.

As the church clock struck midday the bored assistant cast a hopeless figure was seen coming towards the shop, and he was on his other side. "Good morning, old fellow," Figgins.

"What's your name?" asked the boy. "Morin, morin," he said heartily. "Just look in to buy an average comfort, everything that might be regarded as ideas."

"I am not here to look at some, will you, young fellow?"

"An average, do you say?" said the boy. "Yes, yes, same what old Bruggen says."

"What's it like, sir?" asked the unfortunate boy behind the counter.

"It's a bit of a bore, I suppose," Figgins angrily. "All I know is that old Bruggen told me 'as 'ow's got a 'em.'"

"I am ready to pay an average, an average, I want one, too—so true 'em out and let's have a look at some."

"Yes, yes, same what old Bruggen says."

"What's it like, sir?" asked the unfortunate boy behind the counter.

An Uncomfortable Night

Recently a resident of an inland town had a bad night. Still up on a trip that included an all-night voyage on a boat he was accompanying him in a more or more accustomed to the ways of travel.

"Well, I'll get you home," said meeting the old man on deck the following morning, "did you have a good night?"

"Can't say that I did," answered uncle wearily. "When I went to my room I found that I had to wait to how to put on a life preserver, and after that I didn't much rest."

"I don't get you home," said returning the young man. "What had you?"

"Everything," answered Uncle. "I can't sleep with the dertness on."

Another story is told of an American lady who was taking the rest care for a day in a London boarding house.

"I shall want no more meals," she said, "and I shall want no more tea. I shall be up for dinner." There's nothing more I want."

"Oh, yes, there is! I want that hot water bottle; but that's not to eat."

The old woman, then said, glibly: "Oh, yes, it is to eat!" You want me to eat?"

Passing of Darwinism
Scientists from all parts of the British empire were gathered at Bow Island for the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. One of the speakers was Sir William Bateson, who was induced by that great scientist, Sir Oliver Letts.

Professor Bateson's address on "Darwinism and its Critics" was a direct attack on the Darwinian theory of evolution—not on the great facts of evolution itself, but on the Darwinian's explanation of them.

"I suppose," he said, "that every one is agreed that the theory of the origin of species which Darwin presents is a theory of the natural selection of favored races has been developed and is now well known to all of us. Favorited races certainly can replace others. The argument is sound, but it is not the whole argument. It is that debate stands adjourned."

The other side of the question offered no new argument, but while definitely failing to give a high tribute to its proponents.

If they could not see now a few gaps in the theory, they could not see a few well produced another, they at least could catch the system by what was left. The gaps between the various kinds of fowls or between the various kinds of birds were distributed among the offspring.

The allotment of characteristics among the offspring is due to division through a process of cell division in which the elements were sorted out. This was not a new idea, but it was new, but it seemed to him unlikely that they were material particles. He says, "I am not sure that I am dependent on some method of arrangement."

Plants, fowls, dogs, horses, one's own self, have exemplified this doctrine of segregation of hereditary inheritance. The body of evidence was now very large.

He said that they now knew the scope claimed for natural selection much more accurately than before. We went to Darwin for his facts, but the other spoke with philosophical authority. Professor Bateson's speech was not helped scarcely at all to account for the diversity of the species.

That the theory of the origin of species animals had been developed from a few wild types. Fowls presented a good example. All the fowls hatched in turn had been derived as far as he could see from one but from several different parents.

The problem of the origins of life still remained outside the range of scientific knowledge.

He said that he had heard of the spread of the spontaneous formation of life in the laboratory. In the first step in the origin of life, they thought of Harry Lauder in the character of the peddler who sang, "I helped him to come at all to account for the outbreak of war, but his heart of friends, nevertheless, are anxious for him to come back."

Will Canada Carry Her Burden?

GREAT BRITAIN AND EUROPE, where productive industry has been paralysed, have mouths to feed, bodies to clothe, constructive operations to carry through, and a thousand and one wants and needs to be satisfied—and Great Britain and Europe look to Canada in confidence for much of the needed supplies.

It were folly for Canadian manufacturers and merchants to be downcast during these terrible times in Europe. A great burden—a great duty—a great responsibility—has been imposed on Canadian manufacturers, merchants, bankers and workers. Shall Canada and Canadians shirk this burden, this duty, this responsibility?

What's the Answer?
